Department Procedure D1-7.1

Employees who are authorized access to the department's computer systems are assigned a user's identification and are required to maintain a confidential password. Employees must not reveal this password to anyone. An employee who learns that someone has learned his or her password must promptly create a new password.

The Department reserves the right to access any and all information contained in computer files, including electronic mail messages. Employees should have no expectation of privacy with regard to these files, including their electronic messages. Access to the computer system, including electronic mail and the Internet, is for official state business use only. The use of the Department's computer system for personal reasons is forbidden. This includes, but is not limited to, sending and receiving of emails, accessing non-work related websites, downloading files, and accessing information from MULES, NCIC, and OP II for personal reasons. Similarly, employees are prohibited from accessing any computer system through the user identification of another employee.

When employees are unable to report as required, they shall report their absence as required by policy.

Employees working in code 2 positions will not be permitted to hold a second code 2 position within a state agency in accordance with the Fair Labor Standards Act without prior approval from the Department Human Resources Director and the Division Director.

Employees are to ensure that their outside employment does not affect their work performance in any manner and must give first consideration to their employment with the Department of Corrections.

Employees are required to advise their immediate supervisor, in writing, upon accepting employment outside of the Department. The written notification must include a description of the hours worked and the type of duties involved. Exception to the rule: division directors may require employees to obtain prior approval for outside employment if they deem it in the best interest of the division.

Employees who wish to volunteer their services in a treatment context outside of the Department where there is contact with offenders must discuss the volunteer work with his/her immediate supervisor before the volunteer work is accepted to avoid any potential conflict of interest.

The organization considers the information in employment records to be confidential.

Employees must immediately inform their work site human resources office of any necessary updates to their personnel file such as a change of address, telephone number, emergency contact, marital status, name, number of dependents, or military status.

Section III

Employees are also required to update their personal information during their birth month as part of their annual tuberculosis (TB) testing. During the year, as changes occur, it is the employee's responsibility to report changes to the worksite human resources office to include all of the above demographic data.

The Division of Adult Institutions, the Division of Offender Rehabilitative Services, and the Board of Probation and Parole occasionally need to contact off duty employees. Therefore, all staff are required to provide a working telephone number where the employee can be reached during off duty hours. It is the employee's responsibility to provide this telephone number to his or her immediate supervisor and to ensure the work site human resources office is informed. The employee must notify his or her supervisor and the human resources office whenever the number is changed.

Attentive on Duty

All employees are required to be alert and attentive while on duty. While this is required of all employees, it is especially important for employees who work in a correctional center.

State Tax Compliance

All employees of the Department must be in compliance with section 105.262, RSMo. As a condition of continued employment with the State of Missouri, employees must file all state income tax returns and pay all state income tax owed yearly. Within 45 days of being notified by the Department, employees must file the required forms and either pay the tax and penalties owed or provide a copy of a payment plan approved by the Department of Revenue. The only acceptable payment plan is a payroll deduction. The form for a payroll deduction must be presented to the employee's human resources office in order to be considered final and approved. An employee who fails to file the required tax forms and either pay the tax and penalties owed or, in the alternative, present an approved payroll deduction form to the human resources office within 45 days of notification will be dismissed from employment.

When a supervisor learns of an action which may be considered discriminatory or harassing, he/she is required to take immediate action to address the situation. Supervisors may be disciplined for failing to take preventive measures to avoid discrimination or harassment or failing to report discrimination or harassment.

Investigation of a complaint of illegal discrimination or harassment will occur even if the employee does not wish to have the complaint investigated. Any of the requirements of this procedure concerning an ex-offender will be effective for one year from the date the offender leaves supervision

All employees are required to conduct themselves professionally when associating with offenders.. Consequently, employees are prohibited from having avoidable contact (unnecessary personal interaction) with an offender. Avoidable contact is any contact with an offender that is not authorized as a responsibility of the employee's position. Prohibited contact includes, but is not limited to, unauthorized oral or written communication, business or social associations, giving unauthorized gifts of any nature, name calling, teasing, horseplay, joking with offenders, carrying messages for offenders or sharing personal information with offenders, and any other overly familiar act with an offender. This prohibition applies equally to avoidable contact with an offender's family members or significant others.

An offender is any person in the custody of or under the supervision of the Department of Corrections. This includes any person on probation or parole under the supervision of the Board of Probation and Parole.

Employees are required to notify the chief administrative officer in writing when they have a family member who is an offender. Employees must notify the chief administrative officer in writing when they have a pre-existing, personal relationship with someone who subsequently becomes an offender under the supervision of the Department. Similarly, employees must notify the chief administrative officer when they discover that a person with whom they have a personal relationship is an offender.

Section III

Offender Abuse and Sexual Contact with an Offender

Department Procedure D1-8.6

Therefore, employees are prohibited from having avoidable contact with offenders or engaging in unnecessary personal interaction with them. The Department disciplines employees who violate this cardinal principle of corrections. Beyond this, employees who abuse offenders or engage in sexual contact with offenders can be prosecuted.

A person commits the crime of offender abuse by knowingly injuring the physical well-being of an offender by beating, striking, wounding or by having sexual contact with an offender. Offender abuse is a class C felony, which carries a maximum sentence of incarceration for seven years.

When any employee of the Department has reason to believe that an offender has been abused, the employee must immediately report all pertinent details in writing to the Department Director. Failure to report offender abuse is a class A misdemeanor.

A Department employee who works at a correctional center commits the crime of sexual contact with an offender by having sexual intercourse or deviate sexual intercourse with an offender confined in a correctional center. A probation and parole officer commits the crime of sexual contact with an offender if the officer has sexual intercourse or deviate sexual intercourse with an offender who is under the supervision of the officer. (Deviate sexual intercourse is a very broad term that is not limited to intercourse; it includes other forms of physical contact of a sexual nature.) The offender's consent is not a defense to this crime. Sexual contact with an offender is a class D felony, which carries a maximum sentence of incarceration for four years.

Employee Performance Planning and Appraisal System

Department Procedure D2-4.1

The Employee Performance Planning and Appraisal System is used to establish, maintain, and improve the job performance of individual employees within the Department, thereby increasing their productivity.

Employees' work performance will be evaluated on a regular basis by the immediate supervisor, the intent of which is to promote effective communication between the employee and supervisor and to improve job performance and to enhance work relations. The appraisal is conducted at the end of an original or reemployment probationary period and on an annual basis each year between January and March for all benefit eligible employees. For non-merit employees, a probationary period will not be served; however, the employee's performance will be evaluated on an annual basis.

Special performance appraisals may be completed at the discretion of the supervisor when performance or job duties significantly change.

The supervisor will present the appraisal to the employee for review and signature at the end of the appraisal period. The employee's signature does not signify agreement with the appraisal, but indicates the employee has had an opportunity to review the rating. If an employee believes the rating is not accurate, he/she may request the rating be reviewed. Employees are provided with a copy of both the employee performance plan and appraisal.

Employee Performance Counseling and Performance Planning

Department Procedure D2-4.1

To develop, maintain, and improve job performance, each employee must understand all job components and expectations of the position for which they are accountable. Through effective communication, it is the supervisor's responsibility to ensure that employees are provided the opportunities to understand these components and expectations through orientation, training and employee performance counseling.

Performance counseling must occur in the following instances:

- New or promoted employees should have job components and expectations reviewed and discussed,
- At the first sign that an employee's performance is falling below acceptable standards, and
- Quarterly during the first year of employment. All employees are to have quarterly PERforM meetings. Probationary employees are to have monthly PERforM meetings.

In conjunction with performance counseling, an Employee Performance Plan may be developed to help the supervisor and employee develop performance goals. Prior to employment, all employees must submit to a drug test. Many employees occupy safety-sensitive or security-sensitive positions. These are test-designated positions, which are subject to random drug and alcohol testing. In addition to pre-employment and random tests, employees may be required to submit to drug and alcohol tests in the following circumstances: reasonable suspicion, critical incident, post-accident, return to duty, and follow-up.

Any person who suspects that an employee is under the influence of drugs or alcohol must promptly report that information to his or her immediate supervisor who will inform the supervisor of the suspect employee. The employee's supervisor immediately investigates the facts. When appropriate, the supervisor relieves the employee from duty and contacts the chief administrative officer or designee. The chief administrative officer or designee reviews the information and determines whether reasonable suspicion exists. If reasonable suspicion exists, the employee is required to submit to drug and/or alcohol testings.

For drug tests, an employee may be disciplined for, among other things, refusing to provide a specimen, for providing an adulterated, diluted, or substituted specimen, and for a positive result.

For alcohol tests, an employee may be disciplined for, among other things, attempting to manipulate a test result, for refusing to submit to a test, and for a positive result. A positive result is any measurable quantity of alcohol in one's body. Therefore, an employee may be disciplined for a level of alcohol well below the statutory presumption for intoxication (.08%).

Department Procedure D2-8.13

The Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) provides to eligible employees unpaid, job-protected leave for certain family and medical reasons. Except in the case of leave to care for a covered service member with a serious injury or illness, eligible employees are entitled to up to 12 weeks (480 hours) of unpaid job protected leave in a 12 month period. Eligible employees who take FMLA leave to care for a covered service member may be entitled to up to 26 weeks of unpaid job protected leave in a 12 month period.

In order to be eligible, the employee must have been employed by the State of Missouri for at least 12 months and must have physically worked a minimum of 1,250 hours during the preceding 12 months.

FMLA Leave is available for the following reasons:

- Birth/bonding of a child
- To care for a newborn child of the employee

- Care for the employee's parent, spouse, or child with a serious health condition
- The employee's own serious health condition that renders the employee unable to perform the functions of his or her job.

Employees retain their group health care benefits while on FMLA leave. Employees remain responsible for paying their portion of health insurance premiums. Upon return from FMLA leave, an employee is entitled to return to the same position the employee held when leave commenced, or to an equivalent position with equivalent benefits, pay, and other terms and conditions of employment. An employee who takes FMLA leave for his/her own serious health condition may be required to submit certification from the employee's health care provider that he/she is fit for duty.

When the need for FMLA leave is foreseeable, the employee must notify his/her supervisor at least 30 days before the leave is to begin. Re-certification may be requested at times as provided for in the FMLA. The employee must provide the requested certification or re-certification within 15 calendar days after the employer's request, or the employee may be denied FMLA coverage for all related absences incurred after the 15 day period until the employee produces a valid certification.

Discipline

Employee Discipline

Department Procedure D2-9.1

Appointing authorities of the Department are authorized by state law to discipline employees. Disciplinary action may consist of a written reprimand, suspension, demotion, or dismissal. The appointing authority may discipline an employee based upon unsatisfactory performance of job duties or misconduct.

Common examples of misconduct include:

- Unauthorized contact with an offender or offender's family or significant other;
- Insubordination;
- Tardiness;
- Excessive or unauthorized absences;
- Inappropriate use of leave;
- Threatening co-workers;
- Unprofessional or discourteous behavior toward co-workers or the public;
- Personal use of state property; and
- Other violations of the Department's code of conduct.

The above list is non-exhaustive. State regulations and department procedures specify additional grounds for discipline.

In addition to these actions while on duty, an appointing authority may discipline an employee for off duty misconduct, especially misconduct that is unprofessional or criminal. Employees who have been charged with a criminal offense may be suspended while the charge is pending.

The employee's chief administrative officer provides the appointing authority with information about the employee's unsatisfactory performance or misconduct. The appointing authority reviews all available information and determines what, if any, disciplinary action will be imposed.

When an appointing authority suspends, demotes, or dismisses a regular (i.e., merit) employee, the appointing authority provides the employee with notice of the planned action. Before the effective date of the action, regular employees may respond to the appointing authority (or designee). Additionally, regular employees are entitled to appeal to the Personnel Advisory Board (PAB) in the event of a suspension in excess of five work days, demotion, or dismissal.

Section IX

Original and Re-employment probationary and unclassified employees receive written notification of disciplinary action, but do not have any appeal rights.

Employees who are dismissed will be compensated for any annual leave or compensatory time credited to their record. The employee must return all state property, including uniforms, equipment, and identification cards.
