Goodwill of Western Missouri & Eastern Kansas – Kansas City, MO

Goodwill's Vocational ReEntry Program (VRP) is a self-directed program for ex-offenders seeking employment. Individuals are referred through their probation or parole officer to this program, complete an orientation program, have access to services that include job lead lists, computer, voice mail, transportation cards and the opportunity to attend workshops on personal development. Goodwill staff assist with resumes, job application and monitor an individual's progress. During the orientation process, individuals fill out an assessment to identify their barriers to employment. A case manager will refer individuals who list reading skills or lacking work history into specific programs to address these issues. Based on past experience with the ex-offender population, it takes an average of ten weeks to obtain employment. The case manager will follow up on the individual's status 30 and 60 days after the completion of the program.

The Second Change Housing Program is a case management driven service, targeting Missouri Offenders, including sex offenders, who are deemed “high risk” or recidivating. Using Evidence Based Practices, the case manager assists level III offenders with goal setting and achievement, including the acquisition of affordable and desirable transitional or rental housing. The Second Chance Housing Program, launched in August 2010 with MRP funds, primarily assists offenders who reside at KCCRC or who are considered homeless (streets/shelters)/ the Housing Specialist uses MRP funds to assist participants with first month’s rent/deposit. Participants complete Tenant’s Rights and Responsibilities Class and have access to Second Change Program Services to assist with the secondary goals. A goal for all participants is to reduce their level of supervision, including release from KCCRC, removal of electronic monitoring and/or a reduction in FRRS Scores, through addressing risk factors as identified by parties to the case.

Families and Communities Together – Hannibal, MO

We plan to create new services and provide opportunities to further support the offenders in the Marion County area. The Re-Direct Project staff will work with the offenders to assess the needs of each client then both will work together with P&P and the MRP Steering Team and other partners to develop an individualized opportunity plan for the offender. Some support will be available from FACT, while other services will take place at other organizations. We see the key importance of helping the entire family in making adjustments and needed skills in order for offenders to make a safe and healthy transition to home. The ultimate goal will be for clients to become employed, achieve mental stability and actively work the opportunity plan when they come back home.

The Curators of the University of Missouri Department of Corrections – Columbia, MO

The University of Missouri (MU), in partnership with the Missouri Department of Corrections (DOC) and MU Extension offices throughout Missouri, propose Second Chance in Action Community Reinforcement Approach (SCIACRA), an additional offender support system for DOC's existing SCIA grant in the Farmington area. The proposed project features evidence-based strategies with goals of increasing offender's pro-social behavior, likelihood of offender educational success, and supportive family/community relationships. Objectives are 1) Improved community support and 2) offender education achievement for released SCIA offenders as well as other Parole (P&P) clients residing at the Farmington Community Supervision Center (CSC). Outcomes to be tracked include increase in P&P clients served, increase in P&P volunteers and other pro-social community contact recruited and retained, percent of clients completing education programs, and percentage of clients exhibiting desired program outcomes. The proposed strategies – individualized resource and referral appointments, small group classes at the CSC, and community service activities – embody National Institute of Correction's principle of a community reinforcement approach to improve pro-social behavior. A minimum of 25 clients will be served at $512 each for a total of $12,800. MU's outreach division (MU Extension), in cooperation with Region V P&P staff and MU Extension, are ready to launch the Community Reinforcement Approach within 30 days of grant award notification.
